DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kilray et al. (US Patent No. 6,475,146 B1).

Regarding claims 1 and 10, Kilray discloses a method of selecting and presenting user customizable preferences, the method comprising: providing a display having user preference selections, the user preference selections including a customizable selection [..providing a control interface for allowing the user to customize parameters of the size, font the color of highlighting; see col. 3, lines 10-19] ; receiving a customized user preference selection as an input to the customizable selection, and presenting the customized user preference selection in the display of user preference selections along with the customizable selection [..the text-reader software may be customized to underline the words that are being electronically enunciated to suite the user's preference; see col. 8, lines 46-63].

Regarding claim 2, Kilray discloses, wherein the step of receiving a customized user preference selection includes launching a data entry request window when the customizable selection is selected (see col. 11, lines 15-62).

Regarding claim 3, Kilray discloses, wherein the step of receiving a customized user preference selection includes accessing a stored value previously entered by a user (see col. 12, lines 29-65).

Regarding claim 4, Kilray discloses, wherein the customizable selection is set to be the default selection in the user preference selections such that the customizable selection and customized user preference selection are displayed in the user preference selections (see col. 13, lines 33-65).

Regarding claims 5-7, Kilray discloses, wherein the step of presenting the customized preference selections includes presenting the customized user preference selection in parenthesis next to the customizable selection in the user preference selections; and wherein the customizable selection corresponds to a specific image compression percentage (see col. 14, lines 7-51).

Regarding claim 8, Kilray discloses, wherein the customized user preference selection is a number (see figures 5A-6).

Regarding claim 9, Kilray discloses user preference selection along with the customizable selection in the user preference selections includes updating the customizable selection in the user preference selections based upon configuration settings (see col. 15, lines 7-67).

As claims 11-20 are analyzed as previously discussed with respect to claims 1-10 above.
